Keep Going

If you're looking for inspiration that will keep you working on your fitness goals this year, remember the name Jeannie Rice. She's an Ohio woman and an avid runner at age 70.

What Rice likes most about running is that it "is a sport that you can pause and resume at any point throughout your life, and it's not dependent on other people."

She started running several years ago to lose the weight she had gained during a trip abroad. She soon discovered that she enjoyed running and was pretty good at it, so she began training to compete in races. The following year, she ran a marathon and finished with a time of 3:45. She finished her second marathon in 3:16 and has run races worldwide since then.

She runs each morning at 5:30 a.m. with a group of younger runners. She says training with them makes her a stronger, faster runner. She also runs shorter races such as 5Ks and 10Ks to work on her speed.

Her love of running and dedication to how she trains has paid off. In October 2018, Rice ran the Chicago marathon. By her tally it was the 116th time she'd participated in such an event. When she reached the finish line she'd set a new world record of 3:27:50 for her age group.

Jeannie Rice knows she may not be running at her current speeds when she's 80, but she'll keep going for as long as she can.

Meditation And Yoga Practice On The Rise

More and more people are practicing meditation and yoga, according to the CNBC website. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's National Center for Health Statistics reports that the number of U.S. children and adults practicing "mindfulness" exercise has jumped significantly in the past five years.

Researchers studied how many people practiced meditation or yoga or visited a chiropractor within the past year. Yoga was the most common technique among adults, with 14.3 percent practicing it in 2017, up from 9.5 percent in 2012. Meditation came in a close second, with 14.2 percent of American adults saying they meditated within the past year, an increase from 4.1 percent in 2012. Also, 10.3 percent of adults visited a chiropractor, up from 9.1 percent in 2012.

Yoga among teens and younger children rose from 3.1 percent in 2012 to 8.4 percent in 2017, and meditation by adolescents increased from 0.6 percent to 5.4 percent over the same period.

The researchers did not report on any reasons driving the growth beyond noting that some teachers have started incorporating yoga and meditation in their lesson plans.

Branson's Rules For Success

Billionaire entrepreneur Sir Richard Branson is undeniably successful. He's built eight billion-dollar companies, established a nonprofit foundation, and written six books. He also plays a lot of tennis. What's his secret? He's got several, and they've been compiled on CNBC's MakeIt website:

- Follow your dreams. "Those people who spend their time working on things they love are usually the ones enjoying life the most," Branson says.
- Do some good. "If you aren't making a positive difference to other people's lives, then you shouldn't be in business."
- Believe in your ideas. "If you aren't proud of your idea and believe in your plans, why should anybody else?"
- Have fun. "If you're not having fun, then it's probably time to try something else."
- Don't give up. "On every adventure I have been on—whether setting up a business, flying around the world in a balloon, or racing across the ocean in a boat—there have been moments when the easy thing to do would be to give up," Branson has written. However, he never gives in.
- Keep setting challenges. "Write down every single idea you have, no matter how big or small," he once blogged. Then challenge yourself to follow through.
- Delegate. "If you find people who can take on tasks you aren't good at, it frees you up to plan for the future."
- Take care of your team. "If your staff are having fun and genuinely care about other people, they will enjoy their work more and do a better job."
- Get away from your office. "Rather than sitting in front of a screen all your life, switch off the TV or the computer and go out into the world," he says.

• Prove critics wrong. "Some people will react to success by trying to hang onto your coattails," Branson warns. "The best thing you can do is to not only ignore them, but to prove them wrong in every single way."

NEVER GIVE UP!

Thank You! Thank You! Thank You!

Bad Dog

A man is walking past a pet store when he sees a sign that reads, "Talking dog for sale!"

Curious, he walks into the store and finds the dog lounging on a cushion. "You wouldn't happen to be the talking dog mentioned on the sign, would you?" the man asks.

"Guilty as charged," the dog responds.

"Wow, you really can talk," the man says.

"Yep. That's why they call me man's best friend," the dog says.

"Well, why don't you tell me a little about yourself?" the man asks.

"Oh, where should I begin?" the dog sighs. "I've led such a full life. I got my start when I was just pup touring with a Shakespeare theatre group. I made my way out to California to get into the movie business and learned to surf instead. I was pretty good at it, too, but then I tried snowboarding. Now that is my sport. I was even in training for the Winter Olympics, but I broke my leg and that put an end to that career. I'm all better now, and I guess you could say I'm doing a bit of soul searching and trying to figure out what's next. For now I spend my days reading to kids at the preschool and then entertaining the seniors at the nursing home."

"That's remarkable," the man says. He looks over at the shop owner and asks, "Why would you part with such a talented animal?"

The owner shakes his head, rolls his eyes, and says, "I can't stand a liar."

Bake Something!

If you're snowed in and looking for a fun activity to do with your family, consider baking a cake or some other sweet treat that is just as fun to make as it is to eat. There's no better time than the present to teach your kids the basics of baking. Show them how to choose, measure, and mix ingredients as you follow the steps of a recipe that will transform the components into something yummy.

Working in the kitchen is also a great way to show the importance of being organized and tidying up while you cook, keeping hands and surfaces clean, and addressing safety do's and don'ts to avoid accidents and injuries.

If what you're making takes a while in the oven or requires a cool-down period before you can decorate it and eat, you might want to have a game or activity ready to help pass the time.
